

Thermo-regulation

Crocodiles regulate their body temperature by external means. The ideal temperature for a crocodile is 30C to 33C. To keep within this range it has to warm up by basking in the sun and cool down by seeking cooler shady areas.

The inside of a crocs mouth is well supplied with blood vessels which, when basking with the mouth open, help in heat exchange and cool the brain.

